

I urge the FCC not to preempt the Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law. I like the provisions of the Indian law and I wish that there will be no changes to it. In fact, it should be the law in all states. My family would receive an average of 6 telemarketer calls on a weekday with most of them occurring in the evening. We would average about 6 more calls on the weekend with most of them occurring on Sunday evening. Our whole purpose for subscribing to caller ID was so that we could screen these types of calls. Since we were placed on the No Call List for Indiana, practically all telemarketer calls have stopped. We only receive a telemarketer call about once a month. Please, do not preempt this law! I do not want to go back to the days of being pestered by unsolicited telemarketing calls. This should not be a federal issue. The voters of Indiana have spoken and they overwhelmingly approved of this law. This is an Indiana issue, not a federal issue.
